What You Need To Know

How to prepare for your test:

Drink 32 ounces of clear liquids 1 hour prior to exam. Do not urinate until after exam.

How long will the test take?

About 1 hour.

What is the purpose of the test?

Numerous ultrasound measurements are required during cycles where fertility medications (ovulation induction agents) are administered. This ultrasound is used to monitor the size and number of follicles produced in the ovary.

How is the test performed?

This test will involve the insertion of a transducer (a small, handheld probe) into your vagina. The tip of the transducer may be circular or oblong but is usually smaller than the standard speculum used to obtain a routine Pap smear. A protective cover will be placed over the transducer, which will then be lubricated to ease insertion and provide better contact with your body. The transducer will be inserted into your vagina by the doctor or sonographer, or you may be asked to insert it yourself in a similar manner as you would a tampon.

Required before test:

Please provide a signed physician order to perform the exam.

Results will be sent to your ordering physician after a radiologist's review.
